Two powerful families in Verona, the Montagues and the Capulets, have been feuding for so long that they no longer remember why.

Two teenage members of the families, Romeo and Juliet, fall madly in love, but have to keep it a secret, even though they get married.

In a street fight Tybalt, Juliet's cousin kills Benvolio, Romeo's best friend; in revenge Romeo kills Tybalt.

Romeo then has to go on the run.

Aided by a monk, Friar Laurence, Juliet plans to rejoin Romeo and a scheme is hatched to convince everyone that she has died.

She tries to tell Romeo, but her message never reaches him and, thinking she really is dead, Romeo kills himself; Juliet quickly follows suit.

Finally the two families are reunited, though it is in tragic circumstances.
